APRIL 23, 2021 – VIRTUAL CELEBRATION – HTTP://CED.UGA.EDU

College of Environment + Design
UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

23
APRIL
21

INTRODUCTION BY DEAN SONIA HIRT

Honors Day is one of CED's most special traditions—a day in which we celebrate the outstanding accomplishments of our faculty, students, and staff and the remarkable vision and generosity of our friends and supporters. Honors Day '21 occurs during an extraordinary time – the culmination of a full year under the worldwide Covid-19 Pandemic – therefore we will celebrate the students' achievements virtually, on CED's website.

UGA is reaching even higher national rankings because of our academic programs and research. Our commitment to excellence makes us one of the best public universities in the nation.

Since 1928, our faculty, students and alumni have dedicated themselves to bringing life, creativity, stewardship, and imagination to the spaces around us, shaping them into culturally meaningful and environmentally responsible places. Then and now, we lead in planning, designing, and preserving our built and natural environments.

THANK YOU, ALL, FOR BEING AN INVALUABLE PART OF THE CED TEAM!

JACK CROWLEY

Jack Crowley has led a long, successful and varied career in government, the military, the private sector and in academia. He has been a planning director in small cities and large metropolitan regions. He was chief planner for a state park system and a senior corporate real estate development executive whose team built more than $2 billion in downtown mixed-use projects in several major US cities. After directing the Oklahoma Department of Transportation he served for 10 years as Dean of the College of Environment and Design at the University of Georgia. In 2006 Jack founded the master's degree program in Urban Planning and Design at UGA, advised the mayor of Tulsa on downtown development for 18 months and returned to Athens to direct the MUPD until it was accredited in 2017. Dr. Crowley retired in 2020 with plans to still teach and advise on planning and development.
