About the 50th Anniversary Logomark Design Contest

In the 2019-2020 academic year, the University of Georgia's College of Environment + Design (CE+D) will celebrate 50 years of educating professionals dedicated to the betterment of our built environments, especially landscape architects, environmental planners, and preservationists.

You can be part of the celebration by generating design ideas for a "logomark" for the year-long celebration. The logomark is a graphic symbol or icon that will be used at all events and in all official 50-year celebration communications. The logomark should be legible at a variety of sizes, for signage, posters, t-shirts, letterhead, etc. Aside from that, the creativity is up to you!

Information about the contest, including answers to submitted questions and any additional information, will be posted at www.ced.uga.edu/50logocontest. Please check this site often for updates. Submit questions by emailing tom@uga.edu.

Go! Go! Go!...

Get all the “standard responses” that have popped up in your brain down on sticky notes; pin them up somewhere as last resort ideas; then get working on the next 50 better ideas.

Go! Go! Go!...

Creative thinking skills:

- Be 'fluent' – come up with lots of ideas;
- Be 'flexible' – generate ideas that are different from each other;
- Be 'original' – come up with ideas that you haven't seen before;
- 'Resist' closing down your creative thinking process too early.

Go! Go! Go!...

Whether you are working collaboratively or individually you should:

- use proper brainstorming techniques
 - Get comfortable.
 - Go for quantity. Go for lots of different ideas (flexibility) not iterations on the same idea.
 - The wilder the better. The off-the-wall ideas can often be the germ of the 'winner.'
 - Defer judgement. Evaluation/prioritization comes after you have exhausted all possibilities.

Go! Go! Go!...

If you are working collaboratively:

- Alone time: Everyone in the group should spend time alone coming up with ideas – write each down on a sticky note.
- Set up a brainstormer: Get everyone around a table facing each other, big marker in one hand and a stack of sticky notes (one idea per note) in the other, you should be around a large sheet of easel pad paper.
- Take turns presenting one idea each. Put your idea in the middle of the easel paper.
- Build and jump/piggyback on one another's ideas.
- Number your ideas to motivate participants

You can stretch your mental muscles by doing a warm-up exercise.

Go! Go! Go!...

Once all the ideas are on the table, then look for potential:

1. Discuss + group ideas. Get a feeling for which ones have potential for further development. At this point everyone may want to take those ideas and do further individual research and come back to the table later in the week and do another brainstormer.
2. Make sure you are working with all the possible variables.
3. When you are ready, create a large prioritization grid to help look for “potential.” Consider doing several levels of prioritization at different times during the design process.
 - ✓ One axis for “potential” one for “originality.”
 - ✓ Later as the ideas develop, you might use the selection criteria & do several versions to compare.

For this contest, individuals and collaborations will want to do multiple brainstormers.

Go! Go! Go!...

Revisit design theory:

- Elements + principles of design
- Color theory
- Gestalt Theory

Remember graphic design is a separate profession. Be smart and check out their resources.

As you refine your ideas, test your designs against the theory you learned in your first year studios.

Create a plan and stick to it. March 11th is just around the corner.
